More Radical Feeling with Regard to the Bond Bill—A Steer-ing Committee Filling Vacancies.

(REGULAR ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.) WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The House today responded to the appeal of the President by passing a tariff bill, the operation of which is limited to two and a half years and which is designed to raise $40,000,000 for the relief of the treasury. The bond bill will be passed

The vote today was on party lines with two exceptions. The Republicans all voted for the bill except Mr. Hartman of Montana, who did not vote, and the Democrats and Populisis against it, save Mr. Newlands of Ne vada, who voted in favor of the measure. The special order under which the bill was brought to a vote at 5 o'clock, after three and a half hours of debate was ironclad in its character and com pelled the members to adopt or reject it without opportunity of offering amendments of any kind. Although there was the brilliant sitting that usually accompanies a field-day in the House, the debate lacked much of the spirit and vim which generally characterizes a partisan bill in the lower branch of Congress. Even the preliminary skirmish over the adoption of the rule, which ordinarily precipi-tates the fiercest wrangling, passed off tates the flercest wrangling, passed off quietly.

The debate itself was participated in by the leaders on both sides. The Republicans contended that the first necessity of the treasury was revenue to supply the continued deficeincy. Every speaker denied that the proposed measure was a Republican protection bill. It was they claimed, an emergency revenue bill on protective lines. It was significant that several, notably Mir. Dalzell, Mr. Payne, Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Grosvenor, predicted the passage of a genuine protective measure as soon as the Republicans gained opntrol sage of a genuine protective measure as soon as the Republicaps gained opintol of the White House. The Democrats took the position that there was no lack of revenue in the treasury, and that the passage of a bill to increase taxation would in no wise help the situation, nor furnish the relief desired by the President and Secretary of the Treas-ury.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—A special to the consequences of such a chronic deficiency were only the neces-GROVER WILL APPROVE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—A special to the Post from Washington says that a thorough understanding is believed to have been arrived at between the President and the leaders of both parties in Congress by the terms of which the executive will aprove the tariff bill. His consent to this is said to have been obtained by an agreement on the part of the Republican members to make the bill an emergency measure, but limiting its operation to a period of about two and a half years, until August, 1898.

The President argued that such limitation would amount to the practical admission of the ultimate sufficiency of the Gorman-Wilson act from a revenue point of view. The Republicans were won to acquiescence by the thought that they could extend the period to suit themselves as soon as a Republican successor to President Cleveland is installed in the White House, Another provision of the understanding alluded to is-a piedge on the part of the Republicans to do their best to push the bond bill. This bill is along the lines laid down in the President's message and the report of Secretary Carlisle, which provides for sont-term emergency books.

By making it a Republican measure hopes are entertained at the White House that it may get through the Servence's doubtful, for the discovery has been made that, concealed in the bowls of the bill, is a scheme to begin the retirement of the outstanding paper money to meet current expenses in time of peace, events would afford abundant reasons for increasing the revenue, but the consequences are more wide-reaching than the expenses in time of peace, events would afford abundant reasons for increasing the revenue, but the consequences are more wide-reaching than that insufficiency of revenue has current expenses in time of peace, events would afford abundant reasons for increasing the revenue, but the consequences are more wide-reaching than the period of about two and a first Insufficiency of revenue has current expenditures, and thus to supplied state in creasing the reve

By making it a Republican measure hopes are entertained at the White House that it may get through the Serate. This consummation is extremely doubtful, for the discovery has been made that, concealed in the bowels of the bill, is a scheme to begin the retirement of the outstanding paper money WORKING FOR RECIPROCITY.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.-The Times-Herald this morning says that Samuel W. Allerton, farmer, manufacturer and stockman, has taken up the cudgel in Allerton, farmer, manufacturer and stockman, has taken up the cudged in earnest for the restoration of reciprocity. He declares that it is the only available policy that will give the government of the United States the financial aid it needs immediately, and at the same time revive the depressed spirits of the agricultural portion of the commanity. Reciprocity, Allerton believes, will be the keynote of the coming national campaign, and that it will be sounded by the Republican party so loudly that the tariff will be heard of only as a secondary issue.

Just now Allerton is engaged in drafting a memorial to Congress which will contain voluminous statistics gathered from official sources showing how many millions of dollars have been lost by farmers since recoprocity ceased between this country and foreign nations. He is not undertaking this task in an individual capacity, but as the representative of the National Live-stock Exchange, one of the most powerful organizations in the United States. It has a membership of 600 stockraisers and shippers, distributed among the cities of Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Sloux City and Chicago, who are, according to Allerton, almost unanimous in their demand for the restoration of reciprocity, Democrats and Republicans alike. Allerton explained why the interests of the general public and the agricultural community especially demanded the re-enactment of reciprocity. "I read a few days ago," he said, "that the value of the exports from this country in 1895, was $100,000,000 less than in the year before. Now, what are the exports? Live cattle, hog products, canned goods, all supplied by the farmers. If I remember correctly, the shipments of live cattle and dressed beef were valued at $56,000,000 for the year before reciprocity was repealed. Since then the Wilson tariff bill has been passed and the shipments of dressed beef alone to the New England States have decreased $60,000 cattle, while the num'er of live cattle exported has fallen off more than one-half."

"What does this mean to the farmers?" was asked.
"Although there are 6'0,000 less cattle than in 1893 and fewer hogs, the prices have steadily fallen until they have now reached $1 less per 100 pounds.
The resident realization and open To restore reciprocity and open the markets of the world would give immediate relief, because all legitimate foreign exchange is made out of the sale of our cotton, live cattle, dressed beef, sheep, canned goods and farm products."

beef, sheep, canned goods and farm products."

Allerton then goes on to say that Congress should try to so something at once for the relief of the country before going into another long debate on the tariff, and the easiest and best way to meet the situation, in his opinion, is the re-enactment of reciprocity. In conclusion he says: "It is a sound Republican doctrine and has worked very effectively as all farmers will remember when they compare the prices they get for their products now with the prices they received three or four years ago. They are getting almost nothing now, and are in just as bad financial shape as the government. During the last six months this country imported $25,000,000 worth of goods from England alone. We have the goods, England has the gold. Is there any need for reciprocity? The answer is as plain as the nose on your face."

WAYS AND MEANS REPORT.

WAYS AND MEANS REPORT. WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Chairman Dingley of the Ways and Means Com-mittee today reported to the House the tariff and bond bills agreed upon by the majority of the committee. They were accompanied by the following re-were accompanied by the following reports:

"The Committee on Ways and Means, to whom was referred so much of the President's annual message and so much of the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury as relates to revenue and the condition of the treasury, and the President's special message presenting the urgency of immediate action by Congress in a direction calculated to bring relief, report that the committee appreciates the seriousness of the situation and the importance of prompt remedies so far as Congress can give them.

"Your committee regards the chronic deficiency of revenue for the past two years and a half as a most potent cause of the difficulties which the 'treasury base encountered and an important factor in the creetion and pro-sage of a genuine protective measure as soon as the Republicaps gained ophortof of the White House. The Democraticook the position that there was no lack of revenue in the treasury, and that the passage of a bill to increase taxation would in no wise help the situation, nor furnish the relief desired by the President and Secretary of the Treasury.

The bill passed today repeals the present tariff law until August 1, 1898. It restores 60 per cent. of the McKinley rates on wool and woolens, lumber and carpets and makes a horizontal increase of the present rates in all other schedules, except sugar, of 15 per cent. When the bill was put upon its passage it was passed, 205 to 81, the vote being taken by yea and nay. There was no demonstration of any kind at the announcement of the vote.

Mr. Cannon, the delegate from Utah, asked for immediate consideration of a joint resolution directing the Secretary of the Territory of Utah to turn over to the Governor of Utah, upon the issuance of the executive proclamation admitting the Territory as a State, all United States property in the hands of the Secretary. The motion was adopted and the House adjourned unit tomorrow.

would have been so much the less opportunity to draw gold from the treasury.

"Indeed, there is good reason to believe that if, in the first six months of the distrust which inaugurated the run on the redemption fund, the treasury had been receiving revenue more than adequate to meet expenses, so as to temporarily hold the redeemed government notes, the disposition to present these notes for redemption would soon have been overcome. That would undoubtedly have been the case if the redemption fund had been increased in the spring of 1889 and never allowed to fall below the $100,000,000 minimum. And the necessity for more revenue from the point of view of the maintenance of the redemption fund is taken away by the fact that we have $50.000,000 of cash in the treasury in addition to the $100,000,000 (gold) required for the redemption fund and the twenty odd millions required as a working balance.

"This $50.000,000 represents $50.000,000 of redeemed United States legal tender notes, for whose redemption we borrowed $50.000,000 in gold. If we continue to nay them out to meet a defi-

(BY 'FELEGRAPH TO THE TIMES.) LONDON, Dec. 26.—(Special Dispatch.) The Times will tomorrow publish a dispatch from Vienna stating that Lord Salisbury is negotiating with France and Holland with a view to adopting common action against the policy of President Cleveland. The dispatch adds: "Spain has already as sured Great Britain of her agreemen with the latter on the question. It is believed that Great Britain, France Holland and Spain will form a quadruple alliance to protect their American possessions against the United States." Commenting on the report that Sec retary Olney has forwarded a private dispatch to Lord Salisbury, it adds: "There is nothing incredible or surprising in such an announcement. On the contrary, it would be highly hon-orable to him. There is no reason to believe that in pushing the Monroe doctrine Secretary Olney had any design of insulting or annoying England."

A Great Anti-English Demonstration at Caracas.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—A dispatch to the World from Caracas, Venezuela, says that the enthusiasm of the anti-English meeting was indescribable. It was the grandest outburst in the annals of Venezuela. Every house was decorated. There was a parade of 30,000 men and an ovation at the American Legation. President Crespo reviewed the multitude.

The Minister of the Interior, Dr. Francesco X. Juan Castrillo, assured the people that Venezuela will accept only arbitration. Should England refuse, then she will fight for every inch of Guiana until the last Venezuelan perishes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—A later dispatch to the World from Caracas says. "It is rumored that England, believing that the United States is determined to fight, is now willing to arbitrate with Venezuela and wishes to resume diplomatic relations for that reason. The Venezuelan government, while declining to speak officially regarding the rumor, assures me that Venezuela cannot now renew negotiations or receive any communications except through the United States."

THE COMMISSIONERS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—In connection with the appointment of Messrs. Phelps and Lincoln by the President to places on the Venezuelan commission, the World's Washington correspondent is informed that Mr. Lincoln was Secretary Olney's own selection, and that Chief Justice Fuller of Illinois also strongly recommended him on the ground that a report signed by two former American ministers to England, both of whom have been warmly praised by the British press for many years, will have much weight in Great Britain. It is urged, the correspondent states, that public opinion in England cannot ascribe to such men as Phelps and Lincoln any prejudice against England, where they are both very popular. The third member of the commission, he says, is likely to be one of the associate justices of the United States and Lincoln by the President to place associate justices of the United States associate justices of the United States Supreme. Court, probably Justice Brewer or Justice Brown. The correspondent concluded as follows:

"English jurists have the highest respect for the learning and impartiality of our Supreme Court, and the fact that one of its members should temporarily leave the bench to undertake this delicate task would be certain, the President thinks, to add dignity to the commission. But a cabinet officer said tonight that Mr. Cleveland had not positively determined this question of the third commissioner

The appointment of either of these Justices, together with that of Mr. Lincoln would give the majority of the commission to the Republicans. This fact would, it is stated, relieve the President from any suspicion that he was working for the aggrandizement of his own party in creating an international issue. The announcement of the commission is now expected to be made on sion is now expected to be made on next Monday.

It is belleved that the Cabinet will favor a report to Congress arging that the matter be submitted to a friendly power for adjustment.

A call for a public subscription to pay the government's debt to the English bondholders has been issued. Advices from Para are that the Brazilian gunboat Cuaranu has been ordered to patrol the waters adjacent to Napa. Admiral de Mello has issued a manifesto in which he supports President Moraes against the Jacobin party. President Moraes's message to Congress was read yesterday. His recommendations for army and navy expenditures contemplate larger appropriations.

A serious conflict is probable between the Congressional delegation from the State of Rio Grande and President Moraes. They demand the absolute removal of Gen. Calvao from the command of the district, and threaten vigorous opposition if their wishes are not respected. President Moraes is anxious to retain Calvao, It is believed that both sides will endeavor to make the question an issue of prominence, and will rally the best support possible. The Cabinet decided to lay aside the Trinidad question until after the holidays.

dits who held up the street car at the Ingleside track on Christmas night are under arrest. Two of the men were caught in the very act of digging up the plunder from the place where they had "planted" it on the ocean beach about half a mile from the Cliff House. They prove to be Joe Middeton, formerly a fireman connected with engine company No. 4, a man who has been known as a "crook" here for a long time, and a man named Gardner of Eureka, Cal.

Early this morning Superintendent Willis of the Olympic Salt Water Company, while inspecting the pipe-line pier of the company, noticed a strap protruding through the sand under one of the spans. He gave a tug at the strap, but it resisted. A harder pull resulted in bringing to light a canvas bag full of coin. Willis immediately motified Capt. Lees and the chief of detectives went out to the company's plant and, after examining the ground, decided to rebury the bag, expecting that the robbers would come for it after dark, which they did.

On the way to the prison, one of the men who was Intoxicated, let a few words drop that were instrumental in the arrest of Pat Welsh, a Port Costa barber, and an unknown man who gives Johnson as his name. The latter two were arrested in a Market-street saloon. A pouch containing over $1000 is gold and greenbacks is still missing.

He says: "There does not seem to be a ciear conception of what Utah intends doing after January 4, when the proclamation will be issued declaring that Territory a State. (REGULAR ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT) HAVANA, Dec. 26.—(By South Amer-ican Cable.) Since the arrival here last night of Capt.-Gen. Martinez de Cam-pos from Matanzas, he has been in conference with leading military and naval officers, and the leaders of different po-litical parties. They assembled at the palace last night, and, in the course of palace last night, and, in the course of a number of patriotic speeches, pledged their unconditional support to the government in its efforts to suppress the insurrection, and promised to do everything possible in the way of moral and actual assistance.

Senor Galvez, president of the Autonomist party, during the course of a speech which was warmly applauded, advised the Captain-General not to expose himself to the fire of the insurgents, who, the speaker claimed, made war against the lives and property of civilians, never making a stand long enough to cause an engagement beenough to cause an engagement be-tween the troops, and adopting all the methods of savage warfare. Senor Gaivez also stated that in spite of the supreme effort made by the in-surgent army, they had not heard of the capture of any town, the mischie to the enemy being confined to small villages and the plantations of the Isl-and. He compared the army of Gomez and Maceo to "wandering hordes of Tartars," and expressed the opinion that the raid of the Cubans into the province of Matanzas, where they had done so much injury to crops, would turn out to be the worst for them in the

done so much injury to crops, would turn out to be the worst for them in the long run, as the fields, cleared of standing cane, are now much better sulted for military operations.

News from the front seems to be interrupted by rail and telegraph, and no details were obtainable concerning the movements of the insurgents. The captain-general, upon his arrival, announced that the Spanish troops in Matanzas occupied advantageous positions, and that the Cubans would either be compelled to fight a pitched battle in that province or surrender. It is not generally believed, however, that the march of Gomez and Maceo upon Havana has really been stopped, and that they are in retreat. In support of this, it is said that if Maceo and Gomez were retreating the government would not be slow in making public every item of news obtainable concerning this feature of the hitherto triumphant march of the insurgents from the province of Puerto Principe through the province of Santa Clara and Matanzas, and to the vicinity of the borders of the province of Havana, in spite of the numerous columns of triumphant march of the insurgents from the province of Puerto Principe through the province of Santa Clara and Matanzas, and to the vicinity of the borders of the province of Havana, in spite of the numerous columns of Spanish troops in the territory traversed. The last news from the Spanish troops in the territory traversed. The last news from the Spanish columns was that they were heading for Guayabana, the headquarters recently evacuated by Campos situated not far from Matanzas.

The fact that so many announcements have been made of the defeat and retreat of the insurgents that it will require something confirmatory to make anybody here believe that such is an actual fact. When the Insurgents first entered the province of Santa Clara, it was announced they had been defeated with great loss and had retreated across the border, but the next news received from the front was that the Cuban army was threatening Placetas, more than half way between the border and the capital, Santa Clara, and since then they have apparently pushed onward with little or no interruption. The absence of news from the insurgents is causing some anxiety among their friends here, but they claim that Gomes and Macco are in possession of the railroad and telegraph lines, and it was with difficulty that Campos succeeded in reaching Havana last night. Be that as it may, the only news obtainable is that furnished by rumor, and if the authorities are in possession of any additional facts, all such matter is carefully suppressed. Meanwhile active preparations are being made here for the defense and forwarding to the front of all troops which can be spared. It is understood that the Spanish columns in the rear of the insurgent army have been ordered to concentrate as quickly as possible to the frontier of Matanzas and that every effort is to be made to prevent the retreat of the Cubans in Santa Clara, the land fortifications of Havana are receiving attention day and night. A number of additional earthworks have been thrown up during the surgents from escaping back into Santa Clara, the land fortifications of Havana are receiving attention day and night. A number of additional earthworks have been thrown up during the last month also, and these are being hastily completed and supplied with guns as rapidly as possible, heT magazines are plentifully supplied with ammunition, and the outposts of the Spanish troops around Havana are being strengthened and more securely fortified.

Throughout the night and all day there has been an air of hurry and anxiety at the different headquarters here which does not seem to indicate that the supreme authorities are in any way satisfied that the insurgents are retreating and, if military activity goes for anything, the most determined efforts were being made to prevent a surprise.

for anything, the most determined efforts were being made to prevent a surprise.

There is considerable speculation here as to the actual number of men under the command of Gomez and Maceo. The highest estimates have it that the Cuban army numbers 12,000 men, while the lowest is 6000. It is to be presumed, however, that Gomez and Maceo may have 10,000 men with them, as they are known to have been joined by large numbers of adherents since they approached the province of Matanzas. The insurgents are also plentifully supplied with the ammunition said to have been stored for their use at different points and accumulated and hidden for months past. In order to enable as many troops as possible to be sent to the front, all the marines and sailors who could be spared from the Spanish fleet have been landed and the former are now doing duty as artillerymen wherever their services are needed. All the volunteers available are under arms and every male inhabitant capable of doing active serivce is being called upon to bear arms.

OUSCULAR ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTA

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—A local paper publishes the details of a new co-operative colony now being projected in California. The paper says:

"The plan is the result of the observations of William E. Smythe, editor of the Irrigation Age, and for two years president of the National Irrigation, Congress, and has for its object primarily the reclaiming of the socalled arid lands by irrigation, and, secondarily, the establishment of agricultural and manufacturing communities. The site of this proposed colony is the Ashurst ranch in the Sacramento Valley, in Northern California. It is a tract of 10,000 acres, owned by C. B. Ashurst, one of the California ploneers.

"T. B. Wakeman of this city, who is interested in the colony, says that the idea is taken chiefly from the old New England colony. An advisory committee of the proponetrs takes charge of the colony until it is well established, and then turns everything over to the colonists become absolutely independent, owning their own land and its products, and having a proportionate interest in the company, composed solely of themselves, which owns and controls not only the village, but the industries connected therewith.

"Considerable capital was required to purchase the colony tract, survey and construct canals, develop plans and carry them into effect. A price has been put on the land that will return the capital and give a reasonable compensation for the risk, time and labor involved in the undertaking, but no large profits are sought. The prices are placed at the lowest safe figure, while the irrigation plan, the village site, domestic water, electric light and power franchises are transferred to the people absolutely, so that no one can exact perpetual tribute for their use. trees, and maintaining the orchards during the time they were barren, had been a heavy and constant burden.

During the past two months, he said, there has been practically no movement in dried fruit. Rather than sell at a ruinous sacrifice in order to meet present accounts, he said his house had thought it best to make a frank explanation to its creditors, and ask time in which to realize upon its assets, which he claims are fully twice the amount of its liabilities. If the creditors will grant the desired extension of time, he said there was no doubt that the house would be able to pay 100 cents on every dollar of its indebtedness. On the other hand, if the creditors forced a settlement of accounts, he said the house would have to make an assignment, and this would result disastrously alike to debtor and creditor.

Boxes vs. Sacks.

(Ohio Correspondence of California Fruit Grower:) Noting the arguments, pro and cen, in your last issues regarding the use of boxes and sacks in the marketing of California dried fruits, we are led to suggest that it might be well to get the opinions of the different receiving markets on the subject with especial reference to the selling advantages. Aside from there being a manifest difference in the freight in favor of boxes, there is little doubt that the majority of the trade prefer to buy in boxes at materially advanced prices over sacks, providing they can feel assured that the contents of the boxes are straight goods. Dealers demanding sack goods are principally those who "work over." and box the fruit themseives, and not a few of them have a habit of making very inferior sack goods show up as first-class goods (on the face) in boxes, and if there is any prejudice favoring sacks on the part of dealers who do their own boxing, it is principally on this account. Why shouldn't the trade prefer to buy dried fruits in neat, clean, substantial boxes rather than in sacks, that after a little handling, no matter how careful, become dirty, grimy, torn, and the contents very often more or less wasted? Our experience has been that we can easily realize from one-half cent to a cent per pound more for hox goods than for sack goods, and effect more and larger sales.

Machine Shearing of Sheep in Machine Shearing of Sheep in Australasia.

(American Cultivator:) Nearly all the very large stations in New South Wales and Queensland now have machines installed in their sheds, which, like all other machinery, have come to stay. Owing to the very low prices of stock and wool, the sales of machines of late have not been so great as they otherwise would have been, but directly prices move up a little further there will probably be a large increase in this business. The advantages claimed for the machines are: First, that in the first year the increased quantity of wool obtained by using them (equal to one-half pound per head) practically pays for the installation when the number of sheep put through amounts to 20,000 or over; second, that in subsequent years there is no wasty tip, also, that in lamb shearing the extra length of staple obtained. considerably increases the value of the wool, while the weight cut is also increased. It is not necessary for a manhandling the machine to be an old shearer to be a success as a machine shearer. It has been found that tradesmen, such as coach-builders, blacksmiths, carpenters, or, in fact, any mechanics used to handling tools, make much better machine shearers as a rule than the old hand shearers. After a week's practice a mechanic becomes quite accustomed to the work, and as expert, if not more so, than, perhaps, a man who has been "hand" shearing for years. The greatest trouble that the beginner experiences is in handling the sheep, but this quickly comes by practice. To get the most effective work out of the machine to travel free and fast, but it lessens the number of ridges that are left on the sheep, and minimizes the cuts, because, with a machine to travel free and fast, but it lessens the number of ridges that are left on the sheep, and minimizes the cuts, because, with a machine to the skin gets up between the teeth of the comb or when the point of the skin gets under the teeth. This new substance, called "Sanitor." is alleged to destroy at once, almost as by a lightning stroke, all micro-organisms and to be in itself entirely inodorous, or nearly so. Its use entails no inconvenience, is not destructive to colors in carpets, tapestries, etc., and may be regarded as non-poisonous so far as human creatures are concerned. Its use in closets, stables, sewers and sick rooms instantly suppresses all fetid odors and absolutely destroys the germs of disease that are evolved from these fertile breeding grounds for all sorts of microbes. Its composition is of course the secret of the inventor, but its use in hospitals and many other places in France has, according to M. Gautler, made it a necessity where any regard is pald to the best sanitary conditions. Another remarkable fact mentioned by the Frenchman is that if poured upon the most putrid substance, it immediately suppresses all odor, destroys beyond recovery all microbes, and when recovered, is founds not to have undergone any change itself or lost any of its powers; but may be used again and again for the same purpose.

One feature having special interest to fruit-growers in this connection, is that a spray compound of this substance mixed with water is sure death to all insect enemies of fruit trees; the only question yet remaining being that HOTEL RAMONA COR SPRING AND THIRD STS. (REGULAR ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.) PORT TOWNSEND (Wash.,) Dec. 26 e steamship Strathnevis, which iled from Tacoma on October 12 for e Orient, and was given up for lost, arrived in port at midnight in tow of the Steamer Mineola. The officers re-port a remarkable voyage, one filled with dangers and privations. On Monwith dangers and privations. On Mon-day afternoon last all hope of saving the vessel was abandoned, and life-rafts and boats were manned and pre-parations made for leaving the vessel, as she was in imminent danger of drift-ing ashore on Destruction Island. Grave fears are now entertained for the safety of the Australian steamship the safety of the Australian steamship Mlowers, which had the Strathnevis in tow for five days. The captain of the Miowers personally assured the chief officer of the disabled steamship that his vessel would stand by at all has during a heavy gale, the two steel hawsers parted suddenly, and the Miowera disappeared in the storm. The Miowera had had the Strathnevis in tow for five days, and had exhausted the larger part of her fuel, and the master told Capt. Pattie that the Miowera would have to return to Puget Sound for coal.

master told Capt. Pattle that the Miowera would have to return to Puget Sound for coal.

The log of the Strathnevis tells a story that is seldom duplicated in the annals of maritime history, and more especially in the North Pacific Ocean.

Leaving Victoria on October 13, with 165 passengers and forty-six officers and crew, with moderate weather the running was made at a speed of ten knots until October 20 at 7:40 o'clock in the morning in lat. 49 deg. 14m. N., and long. 164 deg. 27m. W., when the ship experienced a terrific shock, the crash sounding like an explosion of a cannon. The big steamer trembled fore and aft, and lay quivering. The shaft had snapped short off close to the propeller, which dropped clear of the vessel and went to the bottom. A strong northerly gale was coming on, and all sail was crowded on, which consisted of two small masts without yards, schooner rigged.

was crowded on, which consisted of two small masts without yards, schooner rigged.

The accident occurred about one hundred and eighty miles south of Unalaska. Slowly the gale carried the Strathnevis to the southwest, and it was two days later before she could make any progress toward the east. From that time on, after temporary yards of a frail nature had been rigged, under a zigzag course she sailed slowly toward Cape Flattery until November 19, when she fell in with the bark John Gamble, which was in lat. 49 deg. 3m. N. and long 145 deg. W., which was themost northern point reached. Southerly and easterly gales were then met and many backsets were encountered which lasted several days at a time. On December 18 she was sighted by the Royal Mall steamer Miowera, bound from Vancouver for Hawail, and at hoon was taken in tow for Esquimalt. Every day brought forth a heavy gafe or tremendous ocean swells and the Strathnevis would get into the trough of the seas and roll frightfully. Unfortunately, the two-line of the four-inch steel hawsers parted at 1 o'clock the next morning, after covering 166 miles. This serious mishap was not successfully overcome, owing to high seas and hoisterous weather, until December 20, all of which time the Miowera hovered close by, and then another steel hawser and twelve-inch manilla rope was gotten aboard and the Strathnevis again was taken in tow. Matters progressed favorably until last Monday evening, when Tatoosh light the Strathnevis again was taken in tow. Matters progressed favorably until last Monday evening, when Tatoosh light was a dozen miles distant, and then the steamers ran into a terrific southwest gale, accompanied by rain and thick weather. In the midst of this storm both hawsers snapped and the rescuing steamer disappeared in the squall, leaving the Strathnevis helpless before the wind and sea, drifting toward shore in the vicinity of Destruction Island.

A few hours before observations had tion Island.

A few hours before observations had been taken, and it was then reckoned the steamer had about twenty niles to drift in an easterly direction before striking the coast. The situation apto drift in an easterly direction before striking the coast. The sails were not large enough to afford steering power and the machinery was powerless to render assistance. Both the passetgers and crew realized the awful situation and loudly did the Strathnevis's whistle blow in vain for help. A consultation was held by Capt. Pattle and his officers, and preparations were made to abandon the ship. Life-rafts and bouts were provisioned and all hanus were preparing for the worst. The gale continued and rain fell in torrents. Through the uproar preparations were made for the last resort, when there came the dreadful roar of breakers bursting over Destruction Island. The roar sounded like artillery and struck the men's hearts with a chill. The steamer's whistle blew great blasts, but in vain. Capt. Pattle ordered the anchors placed over the bows, ready to let go. The task was difficult indeed in such a sea. At an opportune time the gale commenced to moderate and the seas slowly subsided. The shore was only a few miles distant and the lead noted thirty-eight fathoms of water.

At 2 o'clock Tuesday morning the water.

At 2 o'clock Tuesday morning the port anchor was dropped, but it failed to stop the progress of the ship, and she steadily drifted broadside onto the to stop the progress of the ship, and is he steadily drifted broadside onto the shore. Slowly the chain swung her head out to sea, though the strain was so intense that the windlass could not check it, and the anchor and chain ran out and went to the bottom. Quickly all hands turned to and got the starboard anchor down, which held, and the big steamship swung her bow out to sea, chaffed away as though anxious to break away and drift on to the rocks and certain destruction.

Morning dawned and not a sail or vestige of smoke obscured the horizon. At 10 o'clock, though the dangerous sea was running high. Purser McDonald, Second Officer Bain and three Japanese sailors volunteered to make the attempt to reach the Destruction Island in a small boat, in hopes of telegraphing to Port Townsend for assistance.

She was closely followed by the Nicaraguan steamer Costa Rica. After agreeing to leave the question of compensation to the courts the Minchal took the Strathnevis at 4 o'clock, intending to go to Victoria, but the weather was not such as towarrant vessels going there. Just after taking her in tow the hawser pertet, and the ship began to drift ashore. However, another hawser was brought to Port Townsend. For the last two weeks the principal diet aboard has been salmon, flour and condensed food.

vessel was drifting southward, decided to head for San Francisco or some port in California. Next day the Miowers hove in sight and the plan changed.

Immediately after the breaking down improvised yards were placed on the masts, and all spare canvas awnings were utilized for sails, which were used with more or less success. At the times when the gales were severe the storm tore the sails into shreds. At various stages of the voyage everything indicated they were drifting continuously south, which utilimately would bring the vessel into smooth water, in anticipation of which Chief Engineer Rose and assistants constructed a jury propeller eight feet in diameter, built out of quarter-inch plates which were riveted and stamped in such a manner as to insure strength and durability. It was intended that the propeller should be boilted with twenty-one-inch studs into the broken end of the shaft, which, being almost square across, made the idea quite feasible, and doubtless would have been successfully carried out had the weather moderated sufficiently for the vessel to have been tipped forward in safety so that the propeller could have been shipped on the shaft.

During the nine weeks that the Strathnevis was adrift and disabled she encountered continuous gales and heavy seas. The vessel lay almost all the time in the trough of the sea, and rolled frightfully, but shipped very little water, and the cargo was not damaged in the least. The officers and crew, when they arrived in port, were thoroughly exhausted and worn out. The passengers enjoyed fairly good health. One elderly Japanese died of catarrh of the stomach on November 23, and was buried at sea. Much uneasiness is felt for the safety of the boat containing Purser McDonald and four men who left the steamer, intending to land on Destruction Island. The coast is particularly rough and lined with jagged rocks on which several vessels in recent years have been wrecked and a dozen or more lives lost. The hope is held out that he may have landed at Quilayute, an Ind ton. Another remarkable and very strange feature about the Miowera is that when her hawsers parted she did not blow any danger-signal blasts. The whistle on the Strathnevis was blown continuously at short intervals, but no answer came. The Miowera is a valuable vessel, costing about $750,000, and is subsidized by the British government and the Australian government to carry the mails. The terms of the contract forbid delays in any nature except to save lives. If the Miowera is lost her owners will be unable to collect any insurance, owing to the dangerous work she was engoged in when trying to save the Strathn $\mathbf{q}$ s. The opinion among shipping men is fast crystallizing into the belief that when the cable: with which she was towing the Strathnevis parted, they became entangled in the propeller and put the Australian liner at the mercy of the elements. The Miowera is a three-masted schooner-rigged vessel and carried three yards for the foremsst, which enables her to carry a liberal amount of canvas. The idea in some quarters prevalis that she may have had sufficient sail to keep her clear of lank, so that she could stand cut to sea..

Since Monday night, when the steamers parted company, a dozen vessels have come in by the cape, thoroughly covering the area from west to southwest of Cape Flattery, but there was no signs of the missing steamer. Capt. Pattie and his officers refuse to believe that the Miowera, after towing for five days and coming back over 700 miles

Pattle and his officers refuse to believe that the Miowera, after towing for five days and coming back over 700 miles of her track to within ten miles of San Juan de Fuca, with the larger part of her fuel exhausted, would deliberately abandon the Strathnevis on the lee shore of a rocky coast where destruction seemed inevitable.

Only once did the Chinese passengers on the Strathnevis evince a disposition to disobey the officers, and then a display of a chest of firearms brought the belligerents into subjection. They objected to the quality of the food, but as soon as the mitter was explained to the intelligent Chinese no further trouble followed.

Tonight new bids were opened and were as follows: Electric Light and Power Company, $7 per month for lights of 2000 candle-power; San Antonio Light and Power Company, $6.50; San Bernardino Electric Company, $6.50; San Bernardino Electric Company, $5.90. The latter bid was accepted and the contract awarded. The latter price is said to be the cheapest in the United States.

The San Bernardino Electric Company is owned by Charles R. Lloyd of San Francisco, and develops power by the water of Warm Creek. Lloyd announced to the board that he was interested in running the street car lines of the city by electricity, and was backed in the latter proposition by the Santa Fe Raliroad Company. It is proposed to run electric cars from the Santa Fe depot to Harlem Springs.

What Grapes to Plant.

A grape-grower of Fresno county, writing to the Republican of the relative values of grapes says:

"The following figures will prove the difference in favor of planting Zinfandel as against Cabernet Sauvignon, vines the same age, three years old from the graft.

"The Zinfandel will yield three tons per acre, which at $14.50 per ton equals $43.50, less picking at $1.25 per ton. equals, $3.75. In Cabernet Sauvignon will yield (possibly) one ton per acre, which at $15 per ton, less $2.50 per ton to pick, leaves $12.50 per acre.

"To make Cabernet Sauvignon pay the grower the same as the Zinfandel at $14.50 per ton, he must receive fully $45 per ton for his grapes, owing to the extra cost in working and shy bearing."

who oppose raising more revenue in such a situation in effect, whether they intend to do so or not, favor borroving in preference to paying as we go along. "Your committee believes that it is the duty of the House of Representatives to which body the Constitution commits the inauguration of revenue bills, to frame and pass a measure that will yield not far from $40,000,000, sufficient to put an end to a deficiency, and to do this without delay, too, leaving to others whose co-operation is required to finally place such legislation on the statute books to meet the responsibility in their own way."

"The President's special message, atting forth so pointedly the seriousness of the situation and the necessity for the promptest action, only emphasizes the duty of the House.

"In response to the urgent call of the President, your committee has felt impelled to act with all possible dispatch. Two facts have led your committee to look to an increase of customs duties as the most appropriate source of revenue. They are, first, the fact that we are already raising a disproportionate amount from internal revenue, which has always been regarded as a war resort, indeed, Jefferson took the ground that excise taxes should not be resorted to by the 'Ffederal government as sources of revenue in time of peace, and the Democratic National Convention maintained the same doctrine in 1894, and, secondly, the fact that by increasing customs duties on imported articles, which we can and ought to produce or make at home, for revenue purposes, we can at the same time incidentally encourage stricken industries and materially aid in turning in our favor the balance of trade which has caused a demand for gold for export which our treasury has been called upon to supply. For so long as the balance of trade is against us on account of the excessive imports, we mus export gold, or, what is the same thing, promises to pay gold, to pay for the upon to supply. For so long as the balance of trade is egainst us on account of the excessive imports, we must export gold, or, what is the same thing, promises to pay gold, to pay for the excess of imports over exports.

"Your committee has not undertaken a general revision of the tariff on protection lines as a majority hope can be done in 1897-98, not only because they know that such tariff legislation would stand no chance, after becoming a law, but also because general tariff revision would require many months, and the need is more revenue at once. We believe, however, that this need of more revenue is so great that the simple measure increasing all duty of the dutiable list and taking from the free list of the present tariff a few articles that were always on the dutiable list until August 27, 1894, and which have always been important revenue-producters and limiting the operation of such as the same of the present tariff a few articles that were always on the dutiable list until August 27, 1894, and which have always been important revenue-producters and limiting the operation of such as the content of the present into the content of th that were always on the dutiable list until August 27, 1894, and which have always been important revenue-producers, and limiting the operation of such legislation to about two years and a hair, until the present deficiency of revenue is overcome, ought to receive the approval even of those who do not favor protective duties, on pairfolic grounds; and that the fact that it may incidentally encourage the production of many articles that we require at home instead of abroad will not be regarded as a ground of opposition under present circumstances.

"In framing the bill submitted for your consideration, it has been necessary, if action was to be had promptly, to resort to a considerable extent to a horizontal rate of duties, for the reason that it would have required months to deal with each article separately. Horizontal dealings with the tariff cannot be justified in ordinary times, but in such an exigency as now exists, so serious that the President felt it his duty to send us a special message of extreme urgency, and especially for a limited time, it is not only defensible, but is the only alternative.

"But, while we have presented in the brief measure reported, a horizontal in grower the benefit and make k possible to manufacture woolens at home.

"The bill reported by your committee proposes to make the Juty on imported clothing wool 60 per cent. of the duty imposed by the act of 1890, which would give an equivalent of 6.6 of a cent per pound on unwashed wool, or about 40 per cent. ad valorem. This reduction from the duty of the act of 1890 has been made because the restoration of the full duty in that act might seem to be too great a change from the present law, to those whose co-operation it is necessary to secure in order to have any legislation, and not as a measure of what might be done when all the branches of the government are in harmony with the majority of the House on protection lines. The duty on manufactures of wool is increased by a specific duty equivalent to the duty on wool.

by a specific duty equivalent to the duty on wool.

"The duty on carpet wools is left at 32 per cent. ad valoram, where it was placed in 1890. This is purely revenue duty, as we raise very few carpet wools. Such lumber as was placed on the free list by the act of 1890 without the slightest justification is restored to the dutiable list, but with a duty of only 16 per cent, of the futles provided by the act of 1890, giving an equivalent of only about 15 per cat. Such a reduction from the low rates of 1890 is justified only on the ground that the object of your compittee was to frame a bill mainly on givenue grounds, in the hope that it would secure the approval of those in office at places whose co-operation is essential to legislation, and who may be supposed to feel that in such an exigency as now exists the public necessity must control.

"Believing that such an increase of revenue as it proposed is essential, the first step is the restoration of confidence and he restoration of the treastry to a sond condition, and that other ing bill to temporarily increase revenue to meet the expenses of the government and provide against a deficient.

Therefort on the bond bill says that the Scretary of the Treasury now has the authority, under the resumption act of 1885, to issue and sell ten-year 5-p-c-ent, bonds and thirty-year 4-percer, bonds to maintain the fund for the redemption of United States notes, and that he has sold $100,000,000 of the latter description of bonds in the past two years and, as he innounces his intention to awail thmself of the authority given by the resumption act and sell high-rate and long-term bonds if necessary, the only question is whether it is not clearly for the public interests that he should have authority to sell a lower-rate and a shorter-term bond.

for the public interests that he should a shorter-term bond.

The committee thinks that it is clearly in the public interest that he should have this authority, and adds. "In granting this authority, however, we have included in the bill a provision that the proceeds of bonds sold shall be used exclusively for redemption purposes, our object being to secure such a separation of the redemption fund from the ordinary cash in the treasury as will maintain and protect the reserve. We also provide that such bond shall be offered for sale in such a manner as to invite investment among the masses of the people.

Of the certificates of indebtedness the report says: "In our judgment the Secretary of the Treasury should always have such authority as this to meet temporary deficiencies that are liable to arise. Unless this authority is given, the Secretary will indirectly use the proceeds of bonds sold under the resumption act for redemption purposes to meet the deficiency in the revenue, as he has been doing the past two years and a half."

STEERING COMMITTEE ASSIGNMINTS

MENTS. WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.-A caucus of WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—A caucus of Democratic Senators has been called for 11 o'clock tomorrow to pass upon the Steering Committee assignments to the Minority Committee places. The Steering Committee was in session today, but as it did not entirely complete its work, another meating will be necessary before the caucus can act. It is quite definitely settled that Senator Mills will be assigned to the Democratic vacancy on the Committee on Foreign Relations.

WILL HAVE NO CAUCUS

WILL HAVE NO CAUCUS. WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—An attempt was made by several members of the House to secure a caucus of Republicans on the bond bill immediately after the session tonight. The petition was started by several New York Republicans. The leaders discouraged the plan, however, and Mr. Hooker of New York, at the request of Speaker Reed, it is said, induced several signers to withdraw their names, so the movement fell through.

The petition was addressed to the chairman of the caucus, Mr. Grosvenor, and besides asking for a caucus on the bond bill, made the general request that a caucus be called whenever party measures were to be considered in the House. WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.-An attemp

House.

A partial canvass of the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee shows that while there is practically unanimity among them in desiring the accomplishment of the object Mr. Hopkins's amendment has in view, there is some doubt concerning the necessity for the amendment. Members say that a careful examination of the laws will be made, and the question be thoroughly discussed in committee tomorrow, and that if the necessity for an amendment is developed in this particular an amendment will be made.

LATER. The Republican members of the House who are opposed to the bond bill to be voted on tomorrow met in caucus tonight at the Ebbitt House to mature plans for opposition. Forty members representing twenty-three States, were present. The sentiment of the caucus, as it was voteed in numerous speeches, was in opposition to the issue of bonds in time of peace, and that the greenbacks ought not to be retired. At legst, not in the manner prescribed by the bill.

BEARING ON GOLD EXPORTS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—A special from Washington to the laws of an amendent in the case of the caucus as the bill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—A special from ashington to the Inter Octan says this. the investigation which the Republican members of the Ways and Means Cim mittee have made into the workings of the new tariff law developed one of the new tariff law developed one of the most important facts. In its bearing on the gold exports, one of which has not been much considered in this connection. It is found that the imports of the first year under the new law amount to over $106,00,000 in excess of those under the last year of the McKinley law, and that the exports were $72,000,000 less, the real difference against the United Stakes amounting to $179,000,000 in gold.

GROVER'S RUINOUS POLICY. NEW YORK, Dec. 26.-The Evening Post says several leading bankers called learned that probably by tomorrow or Saturday the public would receive as-surance that another government loan would be successfully floated and that the amount would be $100,000,000.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

REGULAR SESSION. . WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—In anticipation of a field-day in the House t/day over the passage of the fariff bill which was agreed on by the fariff bill which was agreed on by the Ways and Means Committee, great crowds were attracted to the Capitol. Most of the inembers who had gone home for the holidays hurriedly re-turned, and the attendance on the floor was almost as large as at the opening of the session. In addition, many Sen-ators were present. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Mr. Dingley, chairman of the Ways and Means Com-mittee, reported the revenue bill, which the reading of the journal, Mr. Dingley, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, reported the revenue bill, which the Spaaker forthwith referred to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Crisp of Georgia of the House minority said that the House minority had had no opportunity to prepare and ille the views of the minority.

Mr. Henderson of Iowa, from the Committee on Rules, then presented the special order under which the House must operate. It was ironclad in its character. It provided that, immediately after the adoption of the order, it would be in order to call up the revenue bill just presented by Mr. Dingley, and that the debate should run until 5 o'clock, when, without intervening motion, the vote should be taken on the passage of the bill. Mr. Henderson demanded the previous question on the adoption of the motion, which was ordered without division.

Mr. Henderson then took the floor and explained briefly the urgency which necessitated such summary action of the House on such an important measure.

Mr. Crisp called the attention of the House to the effect of the rule under which it was proposed to operate, and asked every member to weigh his responsibility when he voted for it. He protested against the use of the whip and spur for the passage of this bill before the opinion of the experts of the Treasury Department could be obtained as to its effect.

from offering amendment which they might deem wise. It was an attempt to make the Republicans appear unanimous. (Democratic applause.)

Mr. Henderson replied that there were no differences on his side. This was en emergency revenue bill, not a careful revision of the tariff bill, and they were all agreed. It was useless to allow the Democratis to postpone modifications. The important consideration was time, and any amendments offered from the other side would only delay, the passage of the bill. None would be adopted.

Mr. Henderson closed the debate on the rules in a speech which aroused the Republican side to great enthusiasm. The Democratic President, he said, had sent to Congress a declaration of war and three days afterward filed a petition of bankruptcy. (Republican Applause.)

"We are not for war," continued Mr.

filed a petition of bankruptcy. (Repub-lican Applause.)
"We are not for war," continued Mr. Henderson. "The President demanded money. We will give it to him. But we have not declared war, although war will find us ready. Let not the busi-ness interests of the country shiver before this tempest in a teapot. The country has assets. The Republican parity has returned to power in the leg-islative branch of the government. It will soon have the executive and then never again will our integrity be put in crats.

bill was then read by the direc-

Democrats.

The bill was then read by the direction of Speaker Reed, who said that Mr. Dingley would be recognized to control the time on one side and Mr. Crisp on the other.

Mr. Dingley took the floor in advocacy of the bill, and said the Republicans had assumed the responsibility placed on them by the President in a patriotic manner, and had gone to work to prepare measures to meet the treasury situation. He then launched into an explanation of the cause of the existing weakness of the treasury, following closely the lines of his report of the bill. It was only when sufficient revenue came into the treasury that the gold reserve could be protected. The Ways and Means Climmittee had decided that these revenues should be obtained from customs duties for two reasois: First, over $150,000,000 was now being raised for the excise taxes, and it was a well-founded policy of the government in time of peace to obtain the bulk of the revenues from duties on imports.

Second, an increase of customs duties the government in time of peace to obtain the bulk of the revenues from duties on imports.

Second, an increase of customs duties would tend to turn the balance of trade in our favor. Mr. Dingley contended that the gold would go abroad to pay the balance against us. The bill proposed by the committee in the next two and a half years, during which it was to operate, would raise about 340,000,000 to ston the deficiency that was causing the disaster. Mr. Dingley then expained in detail, as he did in his report, arguments that had obtained in fixing the duties on wool and woolens, lumber, etc., which were not included in the horizontal increase of 15 per cent. He closed with an explanation that this was not a general bill, and said that the general change needed would be postponed until the other branches of the government were in harmony with the House.

Mr. Crisp, who followed Mr. Dingley, that the general change needed would be postponed until the other branches of the government were in harmony with the House.

Mr. Crisp, who followed Mr. Dingley, said the latter had asserted that this extraordinary bill had been precipitated upon the country and the extraordinary spectacle created by the President's message. In making this assertion Mr. Dinrley had not observed his usual care. It was true, Mr. Crisp confessed, that the daily receipts were smaller than the daily expenses, but there was a surplus in the vaults of the treasury sufficient to meet any probable deficiency three times over. It was not a question of borrowing money, but a question of borrowing money, but a question of using an asset which we have already, a question of getting money to pile up in the treasury. Mr. Crisp then proceeded to argue that the McKinley law had been responsible for whatever deficiency there was. He instanced the fact that the receipts under this law had fallen off, until during the four months preceding the inauguration of Mr. Cleveland, there was a deficiency of over $4,000,000. This shortage had, he said, occurred under a law which was the peculiar pet of the Republican party. Furthermore, he had understood Mr. Dingley to say there had been no exportation of gold previous to the inauguration of the Democratic administration, whereas, as a matter of fact, more than $58,000,000 of gold had been sent abroad during the nine months immediately preceding March, 1893.

Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania said the pending measure was not a Republican tariff bill. It corrected none of the inequalities of the present law. If we would tariff bill. It corrected none of the inequalities of the present law.

Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania said the pending measure was not a Republican tariff bill. It corrected none of the inequalities of the present law. It was an emergency measure formulated under the whip and spur of a pressing necessity, and history would record it to be a conspicuous tribute to the patriotism of the Republican party, which had risen above party lines to respond to the summons of a Demogratic Pureidan. cratic President.

Mr. Crisp yielded a few minutes to Mr. Bell of Colorado, who, upon be-half of the Populists, denounced this Mr. Bell of Colorado, who, upon behalf of the Populists, denounced this attempt to pass a general tariff bill.

Mr. Dockery of Missouri declared that the adverse business conditions that obtained under the McKinley law in 1892 had caused the overthrow of the Republican party in the fall of that year. These adverse conditions, he asserted, compeiled the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Foster, to use $54,000,000 of trust funds. Even with the use of that money he insisted that the treasury was on the threshold of a bond issue when Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated. He produced something of a sensation by holding up and reading Secretary Foster's original order to the chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to "prepare with all possible haste" the plates for a bond issue.

Mr. Hapkins of Illinois asked him if the other side did not believe the pending bill would erlieve the situation had they not suggested some remedy.

Mr. Dolliver of Iowa closed the debate for the majority. His speech was ate for the majority. His speech was most eloquent effort. As he spoke the Republicans crowded about him and there was much applause and en thusiasm. Mr. Dolliver took his sea and the bill was put upon its passage the vote being taken by yes and nay It was passed by a vote of 205 to 81.

The Republican party has returned to power in the legislative branch of the government. It will soon have the executive and then never again will our integrity be put in question." He declared that the Democrats had no right to complain of the whip and spur and gag, after their proceeding on the Wilson bill.

The Rules Committee order was then adopted by a strict party vote, save that Messrs. Linney and Connolly of Illinois, Republicans, voted with the Democrats.

The bill was then read by the direction of the public giving the principal features of the faw, and asking of the question of spurious butter and olemargarine yesterday, said:

Beet Sugar in Germany.

Beet Sugar in Germany.

The Rural New Yorker of November 16, contained the following interesting statistics: "During the past season there were made in 466 German beetsugar factories, 4,102,837.760 pounds of sugar. It required 1,100,000 acres of land to produce the beets, which brought, at the factories, $3.50 per ton. The great proportion of this vast lump of sweetness will be sent to England and America. The beet-sugar business has been of great help to German farmers. It has given German agriculture a new industry. This country is spending $100,000,000 or more each year for foreign sugar. Out on the Western stick to grain because it is the only product for which they can obtain cash, If we could buy our sugar of them, in-stead of French and German farmers, every American would be better off."

They will be given a large reception, January 8, by Mr. and Mrs. Ghiradelli of Oakland, The bride's travelling gown was of dark blue broadcloth, tailor-made, and trimmed with buttons and narrow braid. Slight Frosts Observed.

The reports received by the Weather Observer indicated but slight damage has been done by frosts in this vicinity. Practically no injury has been done to citrus fruits although vegetables and berries on low ground have suffered a little in various places, including Cahuenga Valley. From observations taken yesterday morning it was learned that the temperatures were at Fresno, 28 deg. Fahr.; Sacramento, 34 deg.; and at Red Bluff, 32 deg. There were killing frosts at Red Bluff and Fresno. Light frosts were observed at San Francisco, Eureka and Los Angeles.

The insidious plotting of such mischiefnakers as Debs, however, constitutes a powerful influence for evil, and is most certain, sooner or later, to bring suffering and loss upon those who permit themselves to be led astray by it.

A Washington dispatch states that another bond issue, for $100,000,000, will in all probability be authorized within a day or two. If this report be confirmed, it argues a lack of confidence on the part of the President in the outcome of the pending legisla-tion in Congress. The proposed loan will be pegotiated through the Belmont-Morgan banking syndicate. onds authorized by the pending legislation would constitute a popular loan and would afford the people, instead of the bankers, an opportunity to furnish the money needed by the govern-ment. Another deal with the bond syndicate, for $100,000,000, will be anything but popular.

A Berlin dispatch to the New York Herald states that "it is rumored in diplomatic circles that a number of United States ambassadors, who disapprove of President Cleveland's policy on the Venezuelan question, inresign if it is persisted in." This is well. Falsely publishing that a person would be an Anarchist if he thought it would pay is held in Lewis vs. Daily News Company (Md.,) (29 L.R.A., 59,) to be libelous because it imputes the nossession of moral obliquity and turpitude, which would cause all hones and upright people to shun the person thus stigmatized. In point of fact, there is scarcely any term of reproach worse than that of Anarchist.

Great progress is said to have been made during the past few months in the preparatory work for the Berlin Industrial Exposition for 1896, which is to open on the first day of May next, Nearly all the buildings are under roof so that the work of construction can go on unimpeded by cold weather.

men of the City Jail, to say the least, unique.

But when, this morning, I read that again they had been feasted on Christmas day, I can no longer restrain myself, but must, through the columns of your valuable paper, ask why it is? In our beautiful city there are familles in want and misery, and little children in them who, if they are not starving, scarcely know the meaning of Christmas cheer. Day after day members of the Salvation Army have walked the streets soliciting aid for the needy, and at our very doors are familles so destitute that to them a Christmas feast, could it be bestowed on them, would be like the realization of a dream; and yet, men for the most part lost to all sense of decency and self-respect, and entirely undeserving, are feasted on Thanksglving day and Christmas.

Let me echo the sentiment of thoumen all over the country, it is simply impossible to defeat the movement. It may be retarded, but the stream of sentiment rises steadily, and in due course of time it will have force enough to sweep everything before it, and to more than make up for the temporary delays and impediments."

Let me echo the sentiment of thousands in this city when I cry, Shame on such proceedings! Let the inmates of the City Jail be decently provided for, but if there is any money to spare for feasting, for heaven's sake give it to the deserving poor.

Edna Lyall's "Dream Children." The famous English authoress, Edna yall, writing of her life and early liteyary influences and work in Jenuary Ladles' Home Journal, says: "From the early days of my authorship up to the present time there has always been a story on hand, and writing has become so much a part of my life that it is difficult to understand what life without a vocation would be like, or how people exist without 'dream children.' They cost one much suffering, and bring many cares and anxieties; they are not what we could wish, and we are conscious of their faults. Still they are our 'dream children,' and when they cheer the dull or interest the over-worked there comes a giad sense that it has all been worth while, and we are thankful that the gift was given us."

Incidents of Her Stage Career.

Mary Anderson de Navarro looks back with evident enjoyment upon what she calls the "barnstorming" period of her stage career, which, however, in her case was short, beneficial and pecuniarily profitable. Of her experiences in Owensboro, a small Kentucky town, where she and her little band of actors played for a week, Mrs. de Navarro writes in January Ladies' Home Journal:

"I was a tall, sfender Juliet, and my Romeo proved to be a plump, pleasant little woman, probably the mother of several would-be Romeos and Juliets. The moon she (Romeo) swore by we found to be the headlight of a railway engine hired for the occasion. This was held by a small negro boy perched upon a ladder, who as so amused by the play that he laughed until he shook over the most tragic scenes. Hints for Girls Making Visits.

(Harper's Round 'Table:) When the note of invitation from your friend arrives, the first thing to do is to answer it, setting the day and the train when she may expect you. She probably mentioned the first in her invitation, and inclosed a time-table, so that you might select your train. Having decided on this, keep your engagement. Do not allow a slight inconvenience, or an invitation elsewhere, or a caprice to let you change your plan. Go when you are expected, and stay as long as you are asked to stay. An invitation usually mentions whether your friend would like you to come for a week or ten days, or a fortnight, or it may read thus: "Please give us the great pleasure of a visit from you. Come on Friday afternoon and stay until Tuesday." or on "Monday and help us celebrate Louise's birthday, which occurs on Tuesday: we hope to keep you with us until Friday." It is very much pleasanter to know for how long you are invited than to have it left uncertain, but when no time is mentioned, one takes it for granted that a week will cover the period of the visit.

Margaret Bottome in "Heart to Heart Talks," in January Ladles' Home Journal, relates this pathetic incident of her ministrations to the sick: "Just before I left for Europe last summer a great box came to me, filled with dolls, all dressed, and the request came with it that I should have them sent to a children's hospital. There is a hospital in the city of New York for consumptive children, as well as for older people with the same disease, and I gave the dolls to a physician who is connected with that hospital. He and I gave the dolls to a physician who is connected with that hospital. He said afterward he wished I could have seen the children trooping toward him, each carrying a doll. But the most touching thing to me was what the nurse told the doctor, that after every child was furnished with a doll there were a number left, and the poor women dying with consumption, asked if each might have a doll. They all wanted them, and to each the dolls were given, and the nurse said she could not have dreamed of their being such a comfort to those poor sick women. There were just enough dolls for each to have one. Ah, who can tell the thoughts they had of earlier days when they took a little wee one clost to their heart, as they now took those little dolls."

Bea Constitutional Impossibility.

"Our government is not a confederation of States, but as strictly a government of the people as is any State government of the people as is any State government." writes ex-President Harrison, discussing "This Country of Ours," in January Ladies' Home Journal. "It is true that the vote upon the adoption originally and the vote upon amendments is by States, in State conventions or in State Legislatures, and that in various other ways the States are recognized and used in the administration of the national government. It could hardly have been otherwise. But the construction of Mr. Calhoun and of the Secessionists that our Constitution is a mere compact between independent States; that any State may withdraw from the Union for any breach of the conditions of the compact, and that each State is to judge for itself whether the compact has been broken, has no support either in the history of the adoption of the Constitution or in the text of the instrument itself. The Constitution and laws of the United States Lake hold of and deal with each individual, not as a citizen of this or that State, but as a citizen of the United States. Each of us owes allegiance to the United States—to obey and support lits Constitution and laws, and no act nor ordinance of any State can absolve us or make it lawful for us to disobey the laws or resist the authority of the United States. We owe another allegiance, each to his own State, to support and obey its Constitution and laws, provided these do not conflict with the Constitution and laws of the United States.

BEAUTIES OF REMINISCENCE.

The Most Natural Years of Our Lives are Those of Childhood.

are Those of Childhood.

In the Ladies' Home Journal Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D.D., in an admirable article on "The Memories of Our Childhood Homes," writes that, "Reminiscence makes us little even when we are old, and helps to keep us pure and fresh with the springtime that was in us a score or a generation of years ago. A boy can never become utterly bad so long as there remains with him a memory of his father and mother in the act and attitude of prayer. The time may come with the hardening and chilling process of the years when he will himself cease to pray, but from the canvas long ago painted there will never fade the figures of those, now asleep, whose heads were seen day by day bent in humble, confiding worship, and who in inspired priestliness laid the morning sacrifice upon the family altar; and the memory of father's and mother's prayer helps, at any trate, to keep alive in us our own possibilities of prayer.

"The most natural years of our lives we live while we are children, and there is always rest and purification in there is always rest and purification in getting back into touch with them. When the burdens press a little heavily, and the future is thick with uncertainty, the wish will sometimes shape itself that we might be back again among our free, fresh, childish days. We do not understand it very well, but there is something gone that we would dearly love to have back. Those may seem to have been rather unproductive afternoons that we used to spend up in the garret, listening, in the pauses of our merry-making, to the rain pattering on the roof, and we so dry and sheltered underneath, but our life means more even today because of them and because of our memory of them.

Examination of New York Policemen Examination of New York Policemen.
(Harper's Weekly:) The effort of the Police Commissioners of New York, under the reform regime, to make the police force of the city better than it was in the days of its worful degeneration under Tammany rule, has not been confined to the infusion of a spirit of common decency and common honesty among the rank and file. The commissioners are getting bett physically for policemen than fore. The standard for the fore. the one most dreaded.

This examination is conducted by Dr.
A. H. Brown in a little gymnasium on the top floor of the Criminal Courts building. It is designed to test the strength and muscular development of the applicant. The development is noted by a series of measurements of chest, waist, abdomen, arms and legs.
The data as to strength are secured by actual tests. Gauges have been adjusted to certain intruments, and when the dials show that certain marks—fixed after much study and experience—are reached, a percentage of 100 is recorded. A man, for example, who can make the dial on the machine for testing the capacity of the lungs reach the figures 320, gets 100 in that test.
On the dial for testing the strength of the lungs he must make a record of On the dial for testing the strength of the lungs he must make a record of 25. Probably the test for the arms is the most exhaustive. To get 100 the applicant must hang from a lader and pull his chin up to his hands tentimes. He must then lower and raise himself ten times on parallel bars. Few ever accomplish this. Tests are made of the strength of the back, arms and legs, the muscles in the chest and abdomen. The "grip" of a candidate is shown in what is called the "traction pull," and is also most difficult. A final test of agility is made by jumpling.

All measurements are taken when the men are stripped. No man can be appointed a policeman who does not receive at least 60 per cent. in development and 60 per cent in strength. In the development test muscular condition is the most important factor. In the strength test, agility, arm and leg power and lung capacity count as most important. Between 5 and 10 per cent of those who pass the medical and mental examinations fail in the gymnasium test.

Another Use for Balloon Sleeves.

(Harper's Weekly:) A use for the balloon sleeves that even the sombre prophet Ezekiel did not think beneath his fulminations, was shown by Mrs. Mary Morrison some days ago at Port Townsend, in Washington. The lady had crossed over from Victoria, and while in transit had attracted the suspicious eye of a customhouse officer by the exceedingly bouffant appearance of her costume. Upon investigation it was found that five cans of oplum were concealed in her sleeves. Her daughter, a girl of 12, who accompanied her, was allowed to step outside, where the releved her feelings by a burst of tears, and her person of twelve tins of the Another Use for Balloon Sleeves.

The Texas Experiment station sent out an interesting bulletin recently from which wa clip the following: "Perhaps no other vegetable novelty which has been introduced in the South in recent years has caused more comment than the vineless sweet potato. The experimental stage has been passed, and the value of this variety, like that of the bunch lima bean, has been established beyond question. In Bulletin No. 28 we stated that the tops of the vines (leaves and stems) could be out with a mower. It has been stated as an objection that the ground is usually too rough to run a mower over. With nearly a level culture we have grown over three hundred bushels per care of this variety, and all the tops for feed has been proven, but it is best to feed them green, as they do not cure well. Frequently it is a good practice to mow off the heavy tops and leave the gritty runners on the ground."

Another Dyspepsia Breeder.

(Milwaukee Sentinei:) A proposition from a Brooklyn caterer to serve breakfast, lunch and dinner on certain of the trolley cars running in that city indicates that he believes there is a demand for trolley-car dining service. He thinks that ther are a sufficient number of people in a large city who will find such service's time-saving convenience to make it pay. Men who want to get to business early could save the time they spend over their breakfasts at home, shoppers who miss their luncheon, and business men who are detained till late in the evering would all be accommodated. It is as a time-saving expedient that the trolley dining-car is advocated.

The Kleffer Pear in Florida. The Kleffer Pear in Florida.

(Florida Agriculturist:) One great fault of the Kleffer is its ineradicable tendency to break its limbs from over-bearing. To a horticulturist with a tasty eye, who hates to see anything slovenly about his grounds, it is a source of no little mortification, after thinning the fruit even a second time, to go into his orchard and find a lot of limbs broken down. The only effectual remedy is to cut the tree back ruthlessly, shortening in every limb about half. Now, as soon as the truit is off, will be a time of the year to do it.

with the LAA.C.

"Gentlemen, I am sorry you have been treated to the poor exhibition of hoxing Fraser and Bogan have given us this evening. I have been a niember of the club for eight years, and this is the worst I've ever seen."

That is what John Brink, president of the Los Angeles Athletic Club said last evening, as he stood in the center of the ring after Fraser and Bogan had sprinted around between the ropes for an hour or so, pretending to box seventeen rounds of good, square punching.

for an hour or so, pretending to box seventeen rounds of good, square punching.

The gymnasium of the club was packed from the ceiling down with boxing devotees, lured to the place by the prospect of a first-class exhibition. At 9 o'clock Tasche and Sentous stepped between the ropes to wrestle at catch-as-catch-can, three falls in thirty seconds; Sentous the second in forty seconds; Tasche took the first fall in thirty seconds; Tasche the third in five seconds, and the fourth in one minute, thus winning the match.

The first boxing bout was between "Kid" O'Brien and Prof. Hirst, a four-round go. O'Brien showed up cleverly, touching up his opponent in good shape during the engagement. Whiteside and "Chicago Ed," two colored pugs, followed with a six-round bout. Their antics were somewhat amusing, until the air became laden with Ethlopian microbes, and then Referee Brink called a halt. Four rounds from the colored boys proved to be more than sufficient.

of the finest sort. Both Bogan and Fraser were cheered heartily when they entered the ring. Fraser had two ugly scars, several inches in length, on his back, but was otherwise in good trim. Bogan looked to be in fine fettle, his flesh showing clean and hard, and his movements lithe and springy. Time keepers were chosen, Darmody for the club, Smith for Bogan, and Arbuckle for Fraser. Bogan was seconded by Welch and Gridley, and Fraser by Cotton and an assistant.

for Fraser. Bogan was seconded by Welch and Gridley, and Fraser by Cotton and an assistant.

In the first round the men danced around, apparently sizing each other up, without seeming to care about starting the mill so early. That was all right, and went for the first round, but when in the second Fraser lovingly rubbed his face against Bogan's glove, as though confident that he would not be hurt, and Bogan smilled at his opponent as much as to say "never touched me," then John Brink grew wrathful. "You can't play horse with us," he yelled to the tricky boxers. "If you don't mix up in the next round, the match is off." That braced up the men a little, but not much. The crowd became disgusted with their too-apparent faking, and hissed its disapproval of the hippodrome. Occasionally a little spurt of boxing would come in the match, but a relapse of inaction always followed until the wearlsome show drew almost to a close. At the end of the fifteenth round Referee Brink said, "three more rounds," and three more it was. When the eighteenth round was at an end, the men were fresh as daisies, neither having exerted himself sufficiently to induce a healthy sweat. The referee was mad to think that he and the club he represented had been given such thought to cheat the club and the audience by a raw exhibition of the very worst sort of alleged boxing. The ence by a raw exhibition of the very worst sort of alleged boxing. The audience shared his wrath, and applauded him when he made the speech quoted in the opening paragraph of this report. "There will be no decision." said Brink, and that was the end of it. At the close, groups of chib members discussed the match that proved to be such a sorry fixzle, the consensus of opinion seeming to be that Fraser and Bogan had worked their last fake in Los Angeles. Their style will henceforth be known, and they will be accorded the treatment deserved by fakirs and frauds. The club directors will meet in a few days to decide as to what, if any, portion of the pursagoes to the men.

FOR ART LOVERS AND MEN AND WOMEN OF CULTURE.

Moran's

Magnificent Masterpiece.

The attention of connoisseurs and critics in the world of art, and of all people of culture and refinement, is especially called to the fact that the lithographic reproduction of this celebrated painting was made under the special personal direction of the artist Moran himself. Every one of the twenty-one component colors used in the printing was first approved by the artist before being put upon the lithographic stone.

> The Grandeur of the Gorge Portrayed.

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado, that wonderland of the world, pictured by an artist whose conception was striking, resistless, grand. Thomas Moran's painting, "THE GRAND CANYON OF THE COLORADO," was the artistic triumph and sensation of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago. The faithfulness of the artist in picturing the awful grandeur of the gorge; the delightful delicacy with which he has touched the rolling clouds of mist; the masterly manner in which he has handled Nature's coloring; that melodrama of flame and gold, and rose and wine and azure, is altogether superb.

19th Century Genius.

It is only high genius that has made possible the reproduction of such a splendid work of art, without the loss of a single sun glint; with all the heights and depths of shade luminously portrayed—a reproduction so real that the master whose hand guided the brush-strokes on the original canvas says of it, in effect: "As perfect as perfect can be.'

It is this great lithographic triumph, this magnificent reproduction of Moran's famous picture, 22 x x 38 x inches in size, that THE TIMES has arranged to supply to subscribers. It is a picture with a theme grand enough and an execution beautiful enough to make it worthy a place on any wall-in any home.

Real estate dealers have suffered in common with those engaged in almost every other line of business except the retailers during the past week, owing to the holidays, and the amount of business done has been very limited. It is, however, expected that several sales of importance will be effected after the list, or as soon as the holidays are over.

It is probable that in the early part market in the city, especially along the line of new street railroads and their extensions. Arrangements have been about completed to place on the market a new tract in the southern part of the city, near Central avenue. Several others are being talked of in the north-western part of the city, along the line of the Bellevue-avenue electric road, while the construction of the new electric line to Boyle Heights is certain to followed by the subdivision of sev-

If we are not prepared to meet these people with a good selection of lands of all descriptions for sale on easy terms, it is likely that a good mahy of them will drift into the northern part of the State. In other words, as The Times has frequently stated in commenting upon the difficulty of borrowing on country property, we must not fall into the error of letting the city too much overshadow the surrounding country. SOUTHERN PACIFIC PROPERTY.

In this neighborhood the company owns several pieces of property, which are not at present in active use, includ-ing one tract of twefity acres east of Alameda street and south of Seventh, and a piece of land at Shorb's. The first-named tract was bought during the boom at a very high price, said to be $40,000.

Los Angeles has not yet become so hickly populated that we are called upon to deal with a question that agi-tates the large cities of the East and upon to deal with a question that agitates the large cities of the East and Europe, namely, the providing of hygienic and comfortable dwellings at a moderate price. The fortunate workingman in Los Angeles, if he is at all provident, may purchase a lot within easy distance of his factory or shop, and build a cottage thereon at a total tost of a few hundred dollars. In the large cities of the East the case is very different, and much earnest effort has been devoted to consideration of the best plan for furnishing workingmen's dwellings at prices that will not be beyond the reach of the laboring classes, and at the same time yield a fair rate of interpst on the investment.

In New York there is a State Tenement House Committee, which has been making a thorough investigation of the subject. The committee was convinced that model tenements can be so constructed and managed that at prevailing rentals they will yield a fair profit to the landlord, while the tenant gets at the same time great advantages; that such buildings save lives and raise the moral tone of the people who live in them; that, besides this effect upon the individual, they also have a greatly elevating effect upon the neighborhoods which surround them. The New York World gives the following interesting account of model tenements constructed by Alfred T. White, now Commissioner of Public Works, in Brooklyn:

"Mr. White's model tenements are, perhaps, the best examples of that sort of enterprise existing in this part of the world. They front on Columbia place, Joralemon street and Furman street, and their high-peaked towers, recessed fronts and balconies, broad windowsills and decorated brick work make them very handsome in appearance.

"They cover twenty-four full-sized building lots, less than half of which is actually occupied by the buildings. The committee found it not at all unusual for a typical New York tenementhouse to cover 55 per cent. of its lot. The advantage in air and light is obvious.

"These Riverside buildings contain."

house to cover 95 per cent. of its lot. The advantage in air and light is obvious.

"These Riverside buildings contain apartments for 527 families, besides thirty-one small brick cottages, each with its bit of a lawn, and as snug as any countryman's home.

"The very first aim of the builder was to see to it that each family had privacy insured. In the common tenement privacy cannot exist, and the result is coarsening and bad. Each apartment in the White buildings has its own "front door" opening into a small private hallway. Walls and partitions are "deadened" to prevent sound from passing from one apartment to another. Besides these a small extension contains for each family a water-closet, washtub and ash-chute to the cellar. "The buildings are fireproof. There were 2415 tenement-house fires in New York during the year ending June 30, 1894, and they cost fifteen lives, besides injuring seventy-two persons. So a fireproof tenement is a pleasant thing to think of. "The Riverside biuldings, too, are so sides injuring seventy-two persons. So a fireproof tenement is a pleasant thing to think of.

"The Riverside biuldings, too, are so constructed that disease cannot be communicated from floor to floor. This was such an innovation that it called forth a special tribute from the Brooklyn Board of Health.

The buildings are so arranged that they are at no place more than two rooms deep, so that every room is directly lighted and ventilated. The committee found that out of one group of 53,000 tenement-house dwellers in New York, 43,000 were living in apartments containing dark and badly ventilated rooms, and suffering in them, too.

"Bathrooms are at the service of the "Inclosed in the Riverside dwellings is a park 250 feet long by 150 feet wide, which contains a prepared playgorund for the children, a lawn, shrubs and a bandstand, where during the summer a band plays at the expense of Mr. White.

bandstand, where during the summer a band plays at the expense of Mr. White.

"That wouldn't be a very bad place for anybody to live in, would it? And if Mr. White makes a profit on all that he must charge rentals altogether too high for a poor man, you say. Not a bit of it. Forty per cent. of the tenants in Mr. White's buildings are day laborers. Forty per cent. of the mare mechanics, artisans, etc. The remaining 20 per cent. are employees about stores, private houses, etc. Some of the apartments rent as low as 35 a month, and there is none which is more expensive than 312 a month.

"After every expense of interest, taxes, insurance, repairs and everything else is paid, Mr. White has a little more than 6 per cent. left of profit. That he spends a good deal of it in adding improvements to the buildings in his own affair. He does not wish to make much money out of the Riverside buildings. On the other hand, they are not a charity enterprise. That would be an injustice to the people who live in them. Every man who pays his rent there pays a profit on the quarters he occupies, and is beholden to no one. Workingmen are self-respecting, and there are none more so than those living in the Riverside buildings." "Philanthropy and 6 per cent.' ought to be a pretty good watchword for a good many more New York millionaires, than the few who have adopted it. By building model dwellings for the poor, rich men can lower the death rate and raise the health and happiness rate. They can be of tremendous service to a tremendous number of their fellowmen. It is a great chance to spend money wisely and well."

CRUDE COLORS.

The Builder and Contractor grows enthuslastic over the variety of tints with which however the variety of tints with architecture, but also in the contrasts of colors upon the same building; thus a building will be painted colive with light green trimmings and a black roof; or in light colors it will appear in white and yellow trimmings and a drab roof. This latter is the finish of the colonial, which has become almost a characteristic style of Los Angeles."

It is true that the variety of coloring seen in the residence sections of Los Angeles is a big improvement over the somber hue of rows of brick residences, that is to say, when the colors are chosen with something approaching dences, that is to say, when the colors are chosen with something approaching to good taste. Unfortunately, such is not always the case, and one is frequently confronted with a glaring yellow, a mineral green or a ghastly flesh tint, which is subversive of harmony and gives the spectator of artistic temperament that "tired feeling" of which we sometimes read. People who are building houses would do well io consult some artistic friend before putting on the paint, in case they are not altogether sure of their own judgment.

THOSE LOUD SMELLS.

THOSE LOUD SMELLS.

The question of whether or not an oil refinery should be permitted to exist in the city continues to agitate the residents of several sections. The proprietors of the refinery at Second and Beaudry avenue have not yet made up their minds what they will do. They have been warned not to locate near the river, and it is even stated that the Supervisors would forbid them to locate outside of the city limits. It does not seem reasonable that a board which permits such a flagrant nuisance as Nigger Slough to exist would draw the line at an oil refinery. As to the older refinery, in the northern part of the city, it is at an oil refinery. As to the older refinery, in the northern part of the city, it is stated that the management will fight any attempt to oust them. It is also said that a majority of the citizens in that neighborhood do not object to the works, which employ a good many people. However, the nuisance created is not, unfortunately, entirely confined to that immediate neighborhood, although it has not been nearly so evident of late.

The Times would again urge upon the City Council to set apart some section of the city for manufacturing purposes, so that those who contemplate establishing works here may have a certainty of a location, instead of being discouraged and driven "from pillar to post."

It is of no use for us to invite manu-acturing establishments to locate here facturing establishments to locate here if they cannot get a site when they come. Should the Council decide to forbid the location of such works within the city limits—that is to say, provided they have the power to forbid it—then the next thing would be to decide upon some convenient section just outside the city, upon which a manufacturing district could be built up The urgency of this question is increased by the oil development, which will undoubtedly be followed by a large increase of manufacturing projects during the coming

The Builder and Contractor notes the following uncontracted new work: Plans are being perpared for A. W. Paine for a two-story eight-room residence to be built on Union avenue, near Twenty-first street; cost $3000.

BUILDING PERMITS. CRUDE COLORS.

The Builder and Contractor grows enthusiastic over the variety of tints with which houses are colored in Los Angeles, as compared with the monotony of the prevailing tone in large Eastern cities, where brick is the usural material of which residences are constructed. That journal says:

Deputy Clerk Woodbury of the local office of the Supreme Court received for filing yesterday a copy of the opinion of

The opinion is, in brief, that a claim-ant against a county, who is dissatis-fied with the amount allowed on his fied with the amount allowed on his claim, must again present the claim to the Board of Supervisors for "final action" before he is authorized to commence suit for the amount he alleges to be due.

The text of the opinion is as follows: "The plaintiff is constable of one of the townships in the county of San Bernardino, and on the 5th of May, 1894, filed with the clerk of the board of supervisors of their county and presented

The board of supervisors at its meeting on the 7th of August allowed a claim for $198.99. Thereupon the plaintiff commenced the present action to recover the full amount of his claim. A demurrer to the complaint was sustained by the court, and from the judgment entered thereon this appeal is taken.

"The controverted question on this appeal is whether the plaintiff was authorized to bring an action upon the claim until after the supervisors had acted thereon; upon being informed of his unwillingness to accept the amount allowed. Sec. 43 of the County Government Act (statutes of 1893, p. 364.) after providing that the board of supervisors may allow a portion of a claim pre-

STREET ASSESSMENTS.

The assessment for improving Cambria street between Vernon street and Union avenue, was issued and recorded December 21, to John L. Pavkovich, No. 220 West First stret, to whom it was assigned by Alexander & McGreal, the contractors.

The assessment for improving that the claim after learning that the county and the county after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the county after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the county after the final action of the county after the final action of the board is the county after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the board, but not after the final action of the county afte of sec. 43 is directed to be taken when it it has again considered the claim after learning that the claimant is dissatisfied with his prior action.

"The supervisors would not know whether the claimant would be willing to accept the amount, allowed unless he should in some way indicate his disposition, and until they were informed of his unwillingness there would be no occasion for them to again consider the claim.

"The statute requiring the presentation of claims against a county are framed with the purpose of avoiding useless expense and litigation, and to give the county ample opportunity to avoid such expense; and we therefore hold that a proper construction of the concluding portion of sec. 43 required the plaintiff to indicate to the supervisors his unwillingness to accept the ors his unwillingness to accept the mount which they had allowed, and amount which they had allowed, and give them an opportunity to again consider his claim, in order that the county might have an opportunity to avoid incurring the cost of litigation, which, by sec. 44, would be imposed upon it, if he should recover a judgment for more than the amount for which the claim was allowed. He was not authorized to bring a suit upon his claim until after they had again taken action thereon.

But little of the furniture was saved. The loss was about $800.

At its close was given the programme, which included: "Reminiscences of Early Pasadena," P. M. Green; original poem, J. W. Wood; "Tuberculosis," R. J. Mohr, M. D.; song, M. E. Mr. Green spoke entertainingly in reminiscent mood upon his early experiences in Pasadena, he having come here twenty-two years ago, when the site of Pasadena was covered with grease-wood. Mr. Wood's poem, composed for the occasion, met with a hearity welcome. Dr. Mohr treated of the precautions that should be adopted to prevent the contagion of tuberculosis, recommending that the State appropriate money for hospitals where all tuberculosis patients be carred for. M. E. Wood sang "Finnigan's Wake" with great effect. Mr. Coleman spoke interestingly on the origin of the name "Pasadena," and Mr. Coffin related several incidents in the histories of famous books, concluding with a finely-rendered reading from "The Birds' Christmas Carol."

Mr. and Mrs. Glassocck entertained a large party of friends with a tree and the consequent enjoyments. Mr. Pierce officiated as Santa Claus, and singed his whiskers somewhat by accidentally setting fire to his costume. At the rooms of the Germania Club in Williams's Hail the members of that organization enjoyed a jolly Christmas, about 250 persons being present. Prof. Slegert rendered a violin solo. There were three rousing German choruses, celebrating the pleasures of the Welnichtsfest, a duet, a zither solo and several recitations. The Christmas tree was beautifully adorned; and the hall was beautifully adorned; and the hall was decorated with flags, bunting and greenery. The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of John Roy, chaliman, assisted by Messrs. Charles Roy, Youngclaus, Jureres, Bendowski and Siegert.

BUSINESS.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, THE MONEY MARKIT. The improvement reported on the day before Christmas in the condition of the New York money market has been mainspondingly good influence on the banks here. Bankers today reported a better feeling, but while the improved tone security possible, it by no means made money plentiful for such purposes.

by bankers here to the wise action of the New York bankers in going back to the system pursued two years ago in issuing clearing-house criticates. It worked well then, and it is expected to work well then, and it is expected to work well now, while at the same time it offers equally as good recurity to the bankers who receive them as if the transactions were conducted or a metallic basis. Only those banks belonging to the idearing-house the entitled to receive them, and before they do so each one has to deposit with the Cloaring-house Committee on Leans full security for the certificates they desire. Nor is it optional with the park as to what securities it shall put up. The selection of the securities resis with the Committee on Leans, so there is never any doubt out that the security put up by each bank is just as good as the gold.

The issuance of these clearing-house certificates enables bankers to pay their balances each day at the clearing-house in checks on their wan lanks.

The issuance of these clearing-house certificates enables bankers to pay their balances each day at the clearing-house in checks on their own banks, instead of, as in ordinary times, seitling balances in coin. By this it is seen that coin is rendered for the time being an unnecessary commodity and the weaker banks are therefore protected through the elimination of the possibility of a drain on their coin.

There are sixty-six banks in New York city belanging to the new York Clearing-house. As all of them are holders of securities to very large amounts it is readily seen what an enormous equivalent of money they can call into existence when operating in this way through their clearing-house. Besides the banks which are members of the clearing-house, there are many others in good standing who do their business largely through some one or other of the clearing-house bank, much in the same way as a Los Angeles clearing-house bank might be the banker of an interior bank and practed through some other banker in the clearing-house.

Regarding the outflow of gold to Europe, the opinion still prevails among prominent bankers here that it will continue to decrease, and thut the only available method of replenishing it is by another tond issue. They seem more continue, that the gold reserve will continue to decrease, and that the only available method of replenishing it is by another fond issue. They seem more than ever convinced that President Cleveland will resort to that means shortly after the holidays. They are also of the opinion that, it will not be for a less amount than $59,000,000, eas by the time it could be made it would probably require that amount to bring the gold reserve up to the required amount.

ORANGES IN PHILADELPHIA.
The people of Philadelphia are looking forward with great pleasure to the arrival in their midst of oranges from California. The Grocery World of that city, speaking of the expected arrivals,

"There is a difference of opinion among the trade as to the quality of these early oranges. Some fruit men expess an opinioon that they will be sour and unsatisfactory, and will injure the sale of the California oranges sour and unsatisfactory, and will injure the sale of the California oranges throughout the entire season. Other dealers expect a first-class business, and expect the fruit to be of good quality. A sample of the early oranges was seen, and it fully equaled in size and color the regular California oranges. The flavor is the chief thing, however, and that is not known.

"A well-known fruit man told the writer that he saw no reason why the early oranges should not be fully equal to those of last year, if not possibly sweeter. He anticipated a good business, in view of the fact that there will not be sufficient California oranges to supply the entire trade, which condition usually insures a good, lively trade. The early oranges will continue to come to Philadelphia through the holiday season, and will sell for $4 to $5 per box."

ARIZONA WANTS OIL. Here is an article published in the Daily Herald of Phoenix, Ariz., which ought to make the Los Angeles petroleum producers ask themselves what they have been doing in so long neglecting so good a field for their product as Arizona seems to be.

CREGULAR ASSOCIATED PIRESS REPORT.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Wheel ruled exceedingly dull, but the early feeling was somewhat stronger. There were no foreign markets and local traders showed little disposition to operate, and holiday dullness was the rule. Stocks were stronger at the start and wheat sympathized somewhat, but the failure of the predicted cold wave and the light business resused a reaction later in the day. But when the world's shipments last week were reported at only a little over 6. Then came the big experts from New York on Monday, 565,000 hushels, and there was a further advance, but before noon must of it had been lost. There is still a good deal of apprehension as to the financial outlook which tends to restrict trade and makes the feeling conservative and cautious. May sold early up to 58%, off to 57%, then railled to 58%, but at noon had gone off to 57%, 4757%, split. The market held dull and easy during the last hour and May closed at 57%. The largeling influence. There were liberal receipts of corn, but the trading was selight that prices were not moved %c during the whole seasion. The feeling was steady early in the oat market, but toward the close the market declined, principally through sympathy with wheat. Almost all the trading was man May. The provision market started strons and as long as it had the countenance of firm wheat market continued so. When the latter failed however tropped also.

 Two Travellers in Armenia.

Two Travellers in Armenia.

(Harper's Weekly:) At the present crisis in Turkey, when the whole world is uniting in the flercest condemnation of the "unspeakable Turk," it is well to call to mind the situation immediately preceding these oftbreaks. As soon as the Berlin treaty was signed, the Armenians commenced to look anxiously for the promised reforms, while the Turks realized with increasing clearness that these same reforms involved most serious dangers to their own government. The delay in the enforcement of the treaty emboldened the Turks and disheartened the Armenians. Another disturbing element was the presence in the empire of men, chiefly Russian-Armenians, who preached everywhere the policy of insurrection as the only means of forcing the powers to act. The extent to which they succeeded in stirring actual revolution has been grossly exaggerated by the Turkish government, but they certainly did much to create a general feeling of uneasiness, which made the tension between Turks and Armenians almost unendurable, and which threatened to result at any moment in open conflict. In the recent work of Mr. Weeks, "From the Black Sea Through Persia and India," this state of affairs is alluded to in the dist part of the volume, and at the moment when Mr. Child and Mr. Weeks et out on their journey through Armenia the political atmosphere seemed fleavy with the gathering storm. They were detained in the city of Erzeroum by the discovery of an error in their dragoman's passport. The mistake was made at the American Consultate in Constantinople, and by some oversight this document allowed the bearer to proceed only to Van (his native city,) but not to cross the Persian frontier.

The fact that this dragoman was an Armenian from Constantinople furnished the Vall with a symcient pretext for refusing his signature, and it was only by a successful piece of diplomacy that the two travellers finally obtained a new possport for him Erzeroum being a fortified stronghold within a short distance of both the Persian and the Russian boundaries, all strangers were at that moment regarded with suspicion, particularly as the Turkish authorities were then on the lookout for parties engaged in smuggling arms across the frontier.

In a recent conversation Mr. Weeks alluded to these matters, and spoke of the state of fear and anxiety which prevalled among the Armenians of Erzeroum. The travellers had made the acquaintance of a young man belonging to a prominent Armenian family of that city during the journey from Trebizond. Upon arrival at Erzeroum they were invited to his father's home, and were shown with great mystery and secrecy one or two old books in their native tongue, treating of the antiquities of the city, and illustrated by rude wood-cuts. Even these books were proscribed by the Turkish government, and were kept hidden away, to be shown only to those in whom they had confidence. Many more instances of a similar character were cited. But in this, as in every question in which the willy Moslem plays a part, there are many phases, and experience teaches the diplomat to put his faith neither in princes nor in their subjects, to believe nothing but what his eyes have seen, and that with reservation; for the astute Mussulman has more than once proved himself a match for Frankish diplomacy.

When the whole truth is known, many years hence, it will appear that not merely Abdul Hamid and his Kurdish allies on the one hand, and the Armenian revolutionists on the other, but the proudest nations of Christendom had a share in the responsibility for a series of massacres unsurpassed in the world's history.

Achota, a Model Village.

Achota, a Model Village.

Mrs. Lyman Abbott enthusiastically discusses in her "Just Among Ourselves" department of January Ladies' Home Journal, the new town of Achota near Niagara Falis, N. Y. She says: "One of the adjuncts to the great 'Power Company's' works at Niagara is the ready-made village of Achota. It has not grown up, as most towns and villages do, with a house set here and there according to the good—or badjudgment of the owner, and with lanes and roads more or less smooth and level-generally less—winding hither and yon, perhaps first made by the home-coming cows at night; it is so that the streets of Boston are charged with originating. Achota was begun below the foundations. The ground itself was redeemed by skillful engineering from a sickly, malarial 'flat,' without natural drainage, exposed to the overflow of too sluggish, but often enormously expanded streams. The fields were either wet, sticky and heavy, or, under a scorching sun, baked and seamed with numerous cracks. Its finely-macadamized streets, well-trimmed grass-plots, gardens and shade-trees now have a basis of suitcracks. Its finely-macadamized streets, well-trimmed grass-plots, gardens and shade-trees now have a basis of suitable soil, made so by an elaborate network of tiles laid at a depth of from four to six feet. Upon this well-prepared ground are built and rented cheaply houses of various sizes, with the best modern appliances for household convenience. As the 'Company' still owns all the land and the houses it can maintain perfect order and

On the Trail of Trilby.

(Harper's Weekly.) Albert Vandam, the author of "An Englishman in Paris," has been hunting "on the trail of "Trilby" in Paris, and publishes the results of his quest in the December Forum. Besides giving the true names of streets and locations which figure in Mr. Du Maurier's story, and various information about them, he has something of especial interest to say about the susceptibility of painters' models to hypnotic influences. It seems that in their poses, which are often wearlsome they are apt to bring themselves as nearly as possible to a state of unconsciousness, and when in that condition are curiously receptive of the impressions of another person's will. Mr. Vandam finds a striking facial likeness between Trilby as Mr. Du Maurier has drawn her and Elise Duval, a model of fame in Paris of a period of about twenty years subsequent to the Trilby era. The Duval, it seems, was not infrequently hypnotized by mischievous art students, and had some unpleasant experiences in consequence. Mr. Vandam cannot get rid of the idea that there is a connection between Trilby and her, notwithstanding the disparity of dates. As far as the physical likeness goes his case would seem stronger if Trilby were not obviously a first cousin to almost every pretty girl Mr. Du Maurier has drawn in the last first cousin to almost every pretty girl Mr. Du Maurier has drawn in the last twenty-five years.

A JOLLY CHRISTMAS FEAST NEAR SANTA ANA.

The Return of a Prominent Musician

SANTA ANA, Dec. 26.—(Regular Cor-espondence.) One of the jolliest and respondence.) One of the jolliest and most pleasant Christmas parties ever given in Orange county was at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seegar, about two miles east of Paul Seegar, about two miles east of this city. Mrs. Seegar was very ably assisted by Mrs. M. L. Faul, Mrs. James Magner and Mrs. Nelson Phillips in en-tertaining the company. The dining-rooms were beautifully decorated and the tables were most artistically arranged. They were presided over by Mr. Segar, in his most affable way, and his assistants, Mr. and Mrs. Faul, did much to aid in the expeditious did much to aid in the expeditious serving of the plates. The children's table was spread in the reception hall, and the decorations of sweet violets and Christmas gifts were indeed beautiful. The feast was all that could be desired and happy were those who participated in it. The day's pleasures did not cease until late in the evening and not even then, and the Christmas of 1835 will long remain a joyful memory in the hearts of all who partock of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Seegar.

ECHO MOUNTAIN, Dec. 28.—(Regular Correspondence.) A beautiful Christmas-day added to the enjoyment of 189 guests who explored the wonders of Mount Lowe Railway yesterday. Prof. Lowe personally accompanied the crowded cars which repeatedly climbed the Alpine grade. Dr. Philip Mills Jones, representing the San Francisco Bulletin, made a delightful trip over the Alpine division and the carriage drive to Inspiration Point.

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 26.—(Regular Correspondence.) A number of people visited the Wheelmen's Athletic Park on Christmas afternoon to witness the sports. While the baseball game was a good one, and at times there were brilliant plays, it was hardly up to the expectations of the crowd. Seven innings were played, when the Pasadena team was compelled to leave to catch the train, the score standing at that time 13 to 7 in favor of Riverside.

nings were played, when the Pasadena team was compelled to leave to catch the train, the score standing at that time 13 to 7 in favor of Riverside.

G. Wilbourn was first in the one-mile handleap bicycle race for boys under 16, W. Russell second, and John Drummond third; time 2:37 2-5, which is considered good for boys.

The two-mile handleap was won by Guy Russell with fifty yards' handleap; J. E. Wing, scratch, second; time 4:56.

Christmas eve doings at the First Congregational Church were of unusual interest. After the preliminary exercises and prayer by Rev. T. C. Hunt, the pastor, there were a number of recitations by the younger members of the Sunday school, and a solo by Miss May Heller. Then followed the feature of the evening, the cantata entitled "Santa in a Plight," participated in by thirty or more of the boys and girls of the school, in equal numbers, the girls as fairies and the boys as brownies, the girls being dressed in white with stars upon their heads and fairy wands in their hands, with Hazel Warren as queen, and the boys are ssed in costumes representing various characters—dudes, Chinamen, Indians, etc. Santa was in great trouble. He was so poor that he found it not within his means to buy candles and nuits for the children, and the fairles and brownies came trooping in and tendered their services, and told him not to worry, as they would turn the bricks in the chimney on the platform into paper boxes filled with candies and nuits. Santa Claus thanked the fairles and brownies for their good offices, and distributed the bricks to the little ones. Clara Dickson, representing poverty, appeared and asked that she might share in the good things. The fairles and brownies all gathered about her, and gave—her assurance that they would look after her wants and all those in like condition.

At the Presbyterian Church two large Christmas trees had been prepared, and were loaded with presents for the little ones, not one belonging to the Sunday-school being neglected. It was so arranged that there was Adairise lrving and Ada Adair; quintette, by Mrs. Bayley's and Mr. Adair's classes. Dr. Avery read a Christmas poem.

At the Christian Church there was a diversion which was very pleasing to the little ones. After the opening exercises, consisting of a Christmas anthem by the whole school, prayer by Rev. M. J. Ferguson, an address by Master George. Bush, and song, "Christmas Bells," by the school, Santa Claus made his appearance in the person of George Valmer. He was followed by Mother Goose, and then there came trooping in Little Red Riding Hood, Little Boyesp, Italian and other nursery rhyme characters. "We Hear the Bells of Santa Claus." was sung, when that mythical individual, who had a short time before disappeared, came down the chimney which had been erected on the platform, and distributed the packages to the children.

The Christian Science Sunday-school had an enjoyable Christmas tree entertainment last Saturday afternoon in their hall. The windows were darkened, and the room artificially lighted. After a pleasant musical programme, and while Santa Claus was briefly engaged in distributing presents, and the children were responding with bright faces and happy songs and speeches, an incident occurred which temporarily marred the pleasure of the occasion. Santa Claus accidentally came in contact with a burning taper on the tree and what was a moment before a typical, jolly, old Santa Claus, covered with frost and snow, was transformed into a sheet of fame. But in less time than it takes to write it the conflagration was a thing of the past, by the remarkable presence of mind of those nearest at hand in smothering the without further interruption.

There have, perhaps, been no more remarkable presence of mind of those nearest at hand in smothering the flames, and the exercises proceeded without further interruption.

There have, perhaps, been no more interesting exercises in the city during the holiday season to date than those at Miss Kluber's kindergarten on Orange avenue Christmas evening, from 5 to 6 o'clock. A beautiful Christmas tree, with tiny tapers burning and presents suspended therefrom, made a lovely scene. Under the tree was a miniature manger, with a babe in it, and herdsmen, all in miniature form. The little kindergartners marched around the tree several times, singing little songs appropriate to the occasion. Presents were then taken from the tree and distributed by the children to the parents, each present made by the tiny little fingers of the scholars, and then Miss Kluber gave each child a number of presents. L. W. Allum was singled out for a special favor in the shape of a large pen wiper in the form of a star, which each little kindergartner assisted in making. Attached to it was a card with his name and "A promotor of the kindergarten, with love, from the little children."

An old-fashioned Christmas time was had at the County Hospital Christmas eve. All of the thirty patients who could leave their rooms were invited to the dining-room, where each was presented with a paper bag filled with delicacles. Santa Claus had left each a handkerchief and other gifts as tokens of friendship. Presents were exchanged among the help, and a good time was the order. Then a little surprise was sprung on Dr. Way, which shows the esteem in which he is held by the employees and his coworkers. Mr. Harris, in behalf of the employees, presented him with a beautiful gold ring, set with a magnificent onal. Christmas day the tables were loaded with good things, there being no lack of turkey, with cranberry sauce, mince ples, fruit and other good things, to make every one feel glad that Christmas had come.

The Christmas keevers of All Saints' Episcopal Church consisted of what is termed the lames, and the exercises processification without further interruption.

Christmas dinner at his own expense, and finished it off with cigars all around. They had hardly settled down to enjoy their bounteous repast when a basket of pies, cakes, fruits and nuts came in from the Salvation Army barracks.

Christmas exercises were held on Christmas night by the Sunday-schools of the Central Baptist and First Methodist Episcopal churches. The Baptists had decorated the auditorium very tastefully, and two evergreen trees, one at either side of the platform, were burdened with little sacks of candy and nuts. At the close of interesting literary exercises Santa Claus distributed these gifts. E. S. Foote, superintendent, had charge of the entertainment.

opal. Christmas day the tables were loaded with good things, there being no lack of turkey, with cranberry sauce, mince pies, fruit and other good things, to make every one feel glad that Christmas had come.

The Christmas exercises of All Saints' Episcopal Church consisted of what is termed the full service, commencing at 10:30 a.m., Rev. M. C. Duiton officiating. The music was under the direction of the choirmaster, Stuart Kearne.

UNITY SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Large Andlence Enjoyed Seeing Children's Happiness. The Sunday-school children of Unity Church held full sway in a Christmas entertainment given in the church last evening. They welcomed an immense crowd which had assembled to hear and see them with a "Christmas Carol," and a delightful and quite pleasing miscellaneous programme followed.

"Joyfully, Joyfully" was sung by the kindergarten class. The Misses Thomas executed a mandolin and guitar duet. Little Miss Nellie Cortelyou explained in a charming manner "Playing Santa Claus." Diminutive Alfreda Hanna sang with the cutest gestures and pretiest bow imaginable. "The First Christmas." The "Dance of the Brownies" was whistled by Hazel Bryson. It was remarkably well executed and called forth great applause. A quartette, "Santa Claus Must Be Coming, was well rendered by Bert Russ, Clarence Ragland, Arthur Halgate and Claire Oberholtzer. Little Lulu Lewis beame! all over with hospitality and real happiness when she sang, "Won't You Come to My Tea Party?" "Christmas" was sung by Miss Gertrude Keler.

At the conclusion of the programme most of the auditorium lights were turned out and there immediately appeared at one side a dazzlingly beautiful Christmas tree and a seene representing "Christmas in Norway." both illuminated with incandescent lights, the latter being an interior view of a Norseman's cottage.

Santa Claus appeared from some mysterious source and supervised the distribution of bags of candies and nuts to the gleeful children, who flocked around him to ascertain if they knew him. Some of the knowing little heads were inclined to think Warren Hopperstead had borrowed the winter clothes of Santa Claus, but then it was all guesswork.

S. A. Butler, superintendent of the Sunday-school, received from the tree a gayly-dressed colored girl doll, which he seated on the top of the plano. Mistaken Sacrifices.

(Harper's Bazar:) A certain woman, with a small income and a large heart, has a family of impecunious cousins—mostly girls, of the type that cannot earn their own living, and let themselves helplessly down upon the near, est available benefactor. She worried over them last winter considerably because she was sure the necessaries of life were running low in their little. of life were running low in their little house, and she finally gave up her Christmas presents to her own family, and sent the cousins a check instead. Christmas presents to her own family, and sent the cousins a check instead. Two weeks later she met two of the girls at a tea—they always go to everything—and to her amazement each wore a handsome gold buckle at her waist. "Dear Cousin Jane," one of them said, effusively, "we were so grateful to you for your gift! We have wanted buckles for a year, and now we have gotten them through your kindness!" Cousin Jane's feelings, as she thought of her home Christmas sacrificed for these adornments—butchered to make a Roman holiday, as it were—can be imagined.

She could sympathize with another friend in New York, who gave up going to hear Pattl, with her son and daughter, in order that she might send the money for the three tickets—$15—to velatives who, she knew, were much straitened by the business crisis, and in actual need of ready money. What was her surprise to hear, next day, that three of the family had treated themselves promptly to Pattl on receiving the check. "It came just in the nick of time!' one of them said, appreciatively; but, of course, Mrs. — could not feel it as providential a happening as they seemed to do.

Three gentlemen, none of them wealthy, meeting at the seashore last summer, happened to discuss the needs of an old classmate, and each pledged himself to aid toward a generous gift. The recipient, when last heard from, was enjoying the Atlanta Exposition on the proceeds, while his three benefactors were a trifle sore over the affair which had cost them some trouble-some economies.

which had cost them some trouble-some economies.

We all know such cases. They are both absurd and idisheartening, and yet, since true charity is more blessed to the giver than the receiver, and since it takes all sorts of people to make a world, generous minds will go on giving to the end of the chapter, and will not lose by it after all.
